

A NEW USAASC Website Coming Soon...

U.S. ARMY ACQUISITION SUPPORT CENTER

Why Re-design our website?

- From a review of our website and based on user feedback, we identified the need to modernize and improve how we present information
- Current website does not take advantage of current social media trends
- Information is not easily accessible
- Currently operate 2 separate websites (USAASC & ALT Online) which tend to be stove-piped
- When the re-design is completed, the USAASC website will retain the same address/URL:
<http://asc.army.mil/>

New Website

- One platform, easily navigable and linked to Army and Social Media platforms
- Focused on AL&T issues, Acquisition news stories
- Engaging – Open-Source, Content Management System
- Dialogic – conversational, interactive
- New media technology
  - Web 2.0
  - Social Media (Facebook, Twitter, Flickr...)

The following pages highlight our new look and shows you where today's information will be located:

U.S. ARMY CHEMICAL MATERIALS AGENCY COMMITTED TO SAFE DESTRUCTION

Jan 6, 2011

In 2010, the U.S. Army Chemical Materials Agency (CMA) successfully completed the elimination of more than 2.4 million munitions and more than 25,000 tons of chemical agent from the original U.S. stockpile. CMA has been safely eliminating chemical warfare materiel since 1990. The Army was first tasked with the job of eliminating chemical weapons stores.
